

Newsbreak

June 12, 2008

ECMC welcomes new Financial Literacy Trainer, Kimberly Miller

Educational Credit Management Corporation (ECMC) is pleased to announce Kimberly Miller as its newest Financial Literacy Trainer. Kimberly began her role with ECMC on May 21.

In her new position, Kimberly will educate students about financial awareness to help them understand how to manage their debt, create a budget and spending plan, and establish good credit.

Prior to joining ECMC, Kimberly taught and developed curriculum for the Financial Management portion of a Student Development course at John Tyler Community College in Virginia. Kimberly's comprehensive course topics included financial aid, budgeting, credit card management, identity theft, and banking information. In addition, Kimberly has worked in the graduate school admissions office at Virginia Commonwealth University, as well as the financial aid offices at James Madison University and John Tyler Community College.

"We're very excited to have Kimberly join our team," said Paula Crow, ECMC's Assistant Vice President, Financial Awareness and Training. "Her extensive knowledge of financial literacy and the financial aid industry is sure to be a significant benefit to our partners."

Kimberly is based in the Richmond office and can be contacted at kmiller@ecmc.org and at 804.267.7175

About ECMC

Educational Credit Management Corporation (ECMC), a nonprofit member of ECMC Group, is a national guaranty agency that insures loans under the Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP). Through customer-focused services and flexible products, ECMC works with schools, lenders, and loan servicers to find solutions that best meet the needs of students.